BCBA is a national consortium of scientists and clinicians dedicated to providing researchers with the tissue they need to make real breakthroughs in brain cancer research.

Our inspiration

Lucie Leonard was 34 when she lost her seven-year battle with brain cancer in 2012. Her mother, Robyn Leonard, quickly became a passionate consumer advocate for brain cancer research.

In response to the need for unprecedented amounts of tissue to drive genomic brain cancer research, Robyn set about establishing a brain cancer biobanking consortium, to network the fragmented collections of brain tumour tissue stored in biobanks Australia-wide.

Our vital work

Robyn’s vision was shared by leading brain cancer clinicians, researchers and biobankers across the country. They joined her pursuit to draw together the nation’s brain cancer biobanks and provide researchers with access to the amount and quality of tissue and data required to power their research.

Brain cancer kills more children and young adults than any other cancer, yet it remains one of the most under-researched of all cancers. BCBA’s goal is simple – to ensure that every precious brain tumour tissue donation is utilised in the search for better treatments and outcomes for brain cancer patients.
